TO

ALEXANDER POPE, Esq;

SIR,

Have so great a Trust in your Indulgence toward me, as to believe you cannot but Patronize this Imitation, so much in your own Manner, and whose Birth I may truly say is owing to you. In that Confidence, I would not suppress the Criticisms made upon it by the Reverend Doctor, the rather, since he has promised to mend the Faults in the next Edition, with the same Goodness he has practised to Milton. I hope you will believe that while I express my Regard for you, it is only out of Modesty I conceal my Name; since, tho' perhaps, I may not profess myself your Admirer, so much as some others, I cannot but be, with as much inward Respect, Good-will, and Zeal as any Man,

Dear Sir,

Your most Affectionate

AND

Faithful Servant.

Q. HORATII FLACCI

Why not tranſlated? Odi Imitatores! A Metaphraſt had not turned Tigellius, and Fuſidius, Malchinus and Gargonius (for I ſay Malchinus, not Malthinus, and Gargonius, not Gorgonius) into ſo many LADIES. Benignus, hic, hunc, &c. all of the Maſculine Gender: Every School-boy knows more than our Imitator.

SECOND SERMON.

THE Tribe of Templars, Play'rs, Apothecaries,
Pimps, Poets, Wits, Lord Fanny's, Lady Mary's,
And all the Court in Tears, and half the Town,
Lament dear charming O---f--ld, dead and gone!
Engaging O---f--ld! who, with Grace and Eaſe,
Could join the Arts, to ruin, and to pleaſe.

Not ſo, who of Ten Thouſand gull'd her Knight,
Then ask'd Ten Thouſand for a ſecond Night:
The Gallant too, to whom ſhe pay'd it down,
Liv'd to refuſe that Miſtreſs half a Crown.

Hunc ſi perconteris, avi cur atque parentis
Praeclaram ingrata ſtringat malus ingluvie rem,
Omnia conductis coemens obſonia nummis :
" Sordidus, atque animi quod parvi nolit haberi,"
Reſpondet. laudatur ab his, culpatur ab illis.

Fufidius vappae famam timet ac nebulonis,
Dives agris, dives poſitis in fenore nummis.
Quinas hic capiti mercedes exſecat ; atque
Quanto perditior quiſque eſt, tanto acrius urguet.
Nomina ſectatur, modo ſumta veſte virili
Sub patribus duris, tironum. Maxime, quis non,

Si quis nunc quaerat, Quo res haec pertinet ? Illuc :
Dum vitant ſtulti vitia, in contraria currunt.

Con. Ph-l-ps cries, " A ſneaking Dog I hate."
That's all three Lovers have for their Eſtate!
" Treat on, treat on," is her eternal Note,
And Lands and Tenements go down her Throat.
Some damn the Jade, and ſome the Cullies blame,
But not Sir H-----t, for he does ſame.

With all a Woman's Virtues but the P--x,
Fufidia thrives in Money, Land, and Stocks:
For Int'reſt, ten per Cent. her conſtant Rate is;
Her Body? hopeful Heirs may have it gratis.
She turns her very Siſter to a Job,
And, in the Happy Minute, picks your Fob:
Yet ſtarves herſelf, ſo little her own Friend,
And thirſts and hungers only at one End:
A Self-Tormentor, worſe than (in the * Play)
The Wretch, whoſe Av'rice drove his Son away.

But why all this? Beloved, 'tis my Theme:
" Women and Fools are always in Extreme.
Rufa's at either end a Common-Shoar,
Sweet Moll and Jack are Civet-Cat and Boar:

Nothing in Nature is ſo lewd as Peg,
Yet, for the World, ſhe would not ſhew her Leg!
While baſhful Jenny, ev'n at Morning-Prayer,

But diff'rent Taſte in diff'rent Men prevails,
And one is fired by Heads, and one by Tails;
Some feel no Flames but at the Court or Ball,
And others hunt white Aprons in the Mall.

My Lord of Lo---n, chancing to remark
A noted Dean much buſy'd in the Park,

How much more ſafe, dear Countrymen! his State,
Who trades in Frigates of the ſecond Rate?
And yet ſome Care of S——ſt ſhould be had,
Nothing ſo mean for which he can't run mad;
His Wit confirms him but a Slave the more,
And makes a Princeſs whom he found a Whore.
The Youth might ſave much Trouble and Expence,
Were he a Dupe of only common Senſe.
